We reviewed a middle school list that Stephanie had. I am not sure if it was Sora or Destiny. Stephanie will know the answer to this question.

DRAFT:

I've attached a list of books we (the entire teaching and learning team) reviewed, read summary reviews on, and found that they comply with SB 150 and can be returned to the middle school library collection. This is a draft list that I'd like you all to review. If you feel it is sufficient, I thought you would want to send it to Brian and Jackie.

Thanks,

Hey Steve and Jackie,

I've taken care of the Sora information for you. We looked through those titles as well and only weeded those that were explicitly in opposition to SB 150. Also, for ease of return, you will look up the title, select add copy, and then scan the barcode of the book, and it will be added back into your circulating collection.

Does this make sense? If you need help, please let me know.

Well written.

Could you add a paragraph on how the district has revisited this many times and revised the weeded (SB150) list? I thought it might be worth mentioning. Give her insight into our processes and how it has changed. The list is significantly smaller than the original weeded list from this summer. I think that is worth mentioning.

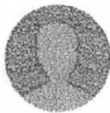

Also, does the weeded list she was given include books that would have been weeded, regardless of SB150, due to natural fruition?

Just some thoughts.

PS in all the years Mike was Superintendent, tax rate increase (no matter how small) were never passed with a unanimous vote. There's a first you can hang your hat on—and a more positive one! 🤔

This is a good response. You may want to mention that our library books are considered part of our instruction or presentation. I think that is a point people could argue that library books are not. That may be where she keeps saying we are getting bad legal advice. You may want to ask where she is getting her legal advice. Or not.

Well written.

Could you add a paragraph on how the district has revisited this many times and revised the weeded (SB150) list? I thought it might be worth mentioning. Give her insight into our processes and how it has changed. The list is significantly smaller than the original weeded list from this summer. I think that is worth mentioning.

Dear KLA conference attendees,

We are one week away from the annual conference, and we are looking forward to seeing you all in Florence. We have a great program lined up with plenty of opportunities to learn and engage with each other. This email provides some key information for everyone attending the conference.

- First, the final program is attached to this email. We will have copies on site as well.
- Conference check-in will be available on Wednesday from 12:30 – 4:00 and will begin at 8 am on Thursday/Friday.
- We are seeking moderators for each session. It's an easy and fun job that involves giving presenters time cues and reminding folks to fill out an evaluation. There will be a folder in each room with everything you need to be a successful moderator. You can sign up at this sign-up page.
- A QR code will be available in each of the rooms that connect you to the session evaluation. As you leave a session, make sure to scan that code and submit your evaluation. This information is valuable and helpful for our presenters.
- The nearby Boone County Public Library is hosting Tours and Treats on Thursday evening. If you think you might attend, please indicate at this quick poll. A count will help us consider food amounts.
- If you want to venture out to eat after visiting BCPL, here's a link to top ten restaurants in Florence. If you want to go a little further, consider some restaurants in Covington.
- Parking is FREE at the conference site.
